

The Graduate School

FSU offers an extensive range of graduate and professional programs, including over 121 master's degrees, 24 specialist degrees, 78 doctoral degrees and professional degrees in law, nursing and medicine

The Graduate School supports students through every program and unit available at the Florida State University by assisting in academic matters, advising on university-wide degree requirements, providing information on the availability of financial assistance and granting approval of theses and dissertations.

Developed GradWorld, a revolutionary new website to showcase graduate education and achievements at FSU

FSU is home to many top-rated graduate and professional programs, which offers an intellectually stimulating environment for graduate-level scholars that is nationally and internationally recognized for its contributions to science, business, government, culture and society.

Houses The Fellows Society, a premiere university institution to recognize and advance academic excellence at the graduate-level

YOUR SUPPORT PROVIDES

- ◆ Student recruitment and retention efforts
- ◆ Competitive fellowships and assistantships
- ◆ Graduate research
- ◆ Career development opportunities and workshops
- ◆ Travel and conference stipends